On July 24th, we presented a check of $475,000 to local nonprofits through our Youth-Serving Organization (YSO) competitive grant program. Now in its fourth year, the YSO program provides operational and program funding to Camden-led nonprofit organizations serving youth ages 3-18.

“We are thrilled to provide more funding and support to youth-serving organizations that create important opportunities for Camden students,” said Giana Campbell, Executive Director, Camden Education Fund. “This year we’ve focused some of our largest grants in a few key areas, inclusive of Social-Emotional Learning and Mental Health Supports, and organizations focused on catching students up academically. By investing in YSOs that support critical areas like these, we can help students to fully recover from the pandemic and fulfill their amazing potential in the future.”

Tess Holley described the reaction when The Neighborhood Center, a nonprofit that focuses on the city's youth, learned it had received a grant for the first time from the Camden Education Fund. "Really? We got it?" Holley, the Center's assistant director, said was the response when the Center learned it would get a $40,000 grant – the Fund's largest this year to organizations that serve youth.
